

Thursday, September 29

Payday at last. We went to the Delphi restaurant for supper. Matthew sat beside Cheryl in his blue rack-seat. He banged a knife on the table. Peter was sliding under the table and tickling Matthew's feet. Both boys laughed. The woman in the next booth asked the waitress if she and her two boys could be moved to a quieter table.

NSF cheques have been coming in quite regularly lately.