Cheryl's parents phoned as we were eating breakfast to see if we'd like to meet them for coffee at the Sheraton Cavalier. Peter went by himself to the Men's bathroom and got lost. After coffee, Cheryl and Matthew shopped at the Plaza while Peter and I went to group lessons at the University. We picked up Cheryl and Matthew and had lunch at Zeller's in the Lawson Heights Mall. We shopped for a shirt for Matthew to wear for a family photo on Tuesday. At home Cheryl and I slept nearly an hour. It has been several days of getting up at 6 am. We had a staff car-rally that evening. I picked up Crystal. The fingers on her left hand were hurting after being shut in a car door.

Half my staff made it to Byblow's. The rally took us around the Lawson, Silverwood and River Heights areas. Cheryl's team won. We ate hamburgers.
